The Hidden Face

וְהִסְתַּרְתִּי פְנֵי מַהֵם וְהָיָה לָאֵכֶל. (דברים לא, יז)

I will hide My face from them, and they will be devoured. (Devarim 31:17)

Simply speaking, Hashem “hiding His face” means troubles. When “I will hide My face from them,” the result is “they will be devoured.”

By contrast, when Hashem shows the radiance of His face to the Jewish people, they receive an abundance of goodness, as we say in Tefilah, כי באור פניך נתת לנו – “With the radiance of Your face, You gave us...” We can’t even imagine all the goodness there was when Beis Hamikdash existed. And ever since it was destroyed, “each day is more cursed than the next.” The increase in evil and curse is due to Hashem hiding His face.

This is the simple understanding of the matter, and it is correct.

But there is another level of meaning to Hashem “hiding His face.”

It is only logical that a human being cannot understand at all how Hashem runs His world. Why is this person rich, and that one poor, this one healthy and that one sick, this one has longevity and that one dies young?

Why is it only logical that we can’t understand all of this? Let’s say a father brings his three-year-old son to cheder to start learning alef beis. If we would

wish to our dear readers, and to all Klal Yisrael, their blessing of* גמר חתימה טובה

ask the child why he is going to school, he would say, "My daddy told me that there are fun games there, and all the kids get candies." The child has no idea how great the mitzvah of Torah learning is. He can't grasp that Torah learning enables a person to attain life in Olam Haba. How can he understand the real reason he is going to cheder? A child can't comprehend the concept of eternity.

Just as an animal can't understand why a person does what he does, so a person on a lower level cannot understand a level that is above him. If so, how could we understand Hashem's ways in the world?

Nevertheless, Chazal taught us:

The world was created through ten Divine utterances.<sup>1</sup>

Why did Hashem need ten utterances to create the world? He could have just said, "Let there be a world," and the world would have come into being. He employed ten utterances because He wanted us to have some understanding of the world. This is why He taught us in the Torah all the utterances that created each aspect of the world.

Similarly, the whole Torah, from beginning to end, teaches us how Hashem made His world and how He runs it. והיה אם שמוע תשמעו אל מצותי וגו' – "If you will surely listen to My mitzvos... I will give the rain of your land in its time."<sup>2</sup> Someone who learns Torah knows that when it rains, it is because there is a tzaddik in the world that prayed for the rain to come, or because a yeshivah bachur sat and learned Torah assiduously at night. And if there is a drought, we need to look for the reason in the passage of ויעצר את השמים ולא יהיה מטר – "He will stop up the heavens and there will be no rain."<sup>3</sup>

And Hashem did not just grant us understanding of such matters. He gave over the matter itself into our hands. A person determines by means of his deeds what will happen in the world. He has the power to pray for rain, for parnassah and for health. There is nothing in the world that is not for the Jewish people. We can attain things by means of our spiritual deeds.

If a Jew does mitzvos, his reward will grant him success, and if he transgresses them, his punishment will sever his life.<sup>4</sup>

From a young age we were taught that in order to get a candy, we need to say a berachah. The awareness has been implanted in us that receiving goodness depends on our doing good deeds.

Hakadosh Baruch Hu tied the running of the world to the Jewish people. Everything goes according to our deeds, according to our understanding and according to our intelligence. So to speak, Hashem's existence is thus hidden from the world.

The ultimate truth that everything in the world comes solely from Hashem and depends solely on Hashem is a hidden truth. This is the hiding of Hashem's face. ●

Teshuvah: What and How

These days between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are called Aseres Yemei Teshuvah. This is the time to put special effort into the mitzvah of Teshuvah. Teshuvah is one of the 613 mitzvos. And, like the other mitzvos, it has halachos that define it and tell us how to fulfill it.

On one hand, doing Teshuvah and becoming a true baal Teshuvah is a high level that is hard to attain. It requires fundamentally changing our whole way of living. It means that from now on, we live according to Torah and yiras Shamayim.

On the other hand, it is not hard to fulfill the mitzvah according to its basic Halachic requirements. The Chofetz Chaim remarked that "Teshuvah is a mitzvah that is easy to fulfill." Its halachos are clear. It is thus a very good idea to review them at this time of year, as it says:

וְדַבֵּר בְּעֵתוֹ מֵה טוֹב – Something in its proper time is very good.<sup>1</sup>

Here are the basic halachos pertaining to Teshuvah:

1. חרטה – Regret. The first thing is to understand and recognize that it is bad and bitter to rebel against Hashem. This is both because of the harsh punishments that eventually overtake sinners, and because it is totally unacceptable to reject the will of He Who gave you so much goodness and kindness since the day you were born. Life itself, every single breath, parmassah, family... every little and big thing we have is a gift of love from Hashem. How can we be so ungrateful, especially as He is a great and mighty King Who created everything and controls everything?!

Sometimes a person does an aveirah and it seems to him that he gained thereby. For instance, he made a dishonest business deal and earned a nice profit. There are many other ways that bad deeds can yield benefits. We need to understand this properly. These gains will turn out in the end to be heavy and distressing losses. A person needs to truly regret having done that which was to his own detriment, and correct it as best he can.

2. קבלה – Decision. Make a true and well-considered decision that such things won't happen again. During Yamim Nora'im we tend to get worked up and make all sorts of good resolutions. But sometimes they are above our level, and we won't succeed in carrying through with them. This is why we need to make well-considered decisions, which we are capable of keeping up, rather than just getting carried away by momentary excitement. If we think our resolutions through, we may assume that a change will indeed take place.

3. וידוי – Confession. We need to verbalize the above, saying that we sinned by doing such and such, and that we regret it all, and sincerely resolve that it won't happen again.

4. If the sin involved behaving improperly toward another person, bein adam l'chaveiro, then we need to make amends. If we caused property damage to someone, or took something that belonged to them, we need to return whatever we owe, and also seek their forgiveness for the pain and trouble we caused them.

There are many levels to Teshuvah. We have focused here on the essential halachos pertaining to the mitzvah of Teshuvah. We need to feel pain over what happened in the past and pray to Hashem that He should accept us back and restore our relationship with Him.

If we fulfill this mitzvah even regarding just one matter, we merit a mitzvah that is above all others.

Hashem calls us “loved,” “desired,” “close” and “friend.” We are attached to Hakadosh Baruch Hu. We have come to an amazing place!

The Crane of Teshuvah

These wonderful and special days are called the Ten Days of Repentance. This raises a question: how can there be days specially designated for Teshuvah, when Teshuvah is a mitzvah that applies every day?

R. Eliezer says: Repent a day before you die.<sup>2</sup>

This means we should do Teshuvah every day, because no one knows the day he will die. If so, what is special and different about Aseres Yemei Teshuvah?

Teshuvah has two parts. The first is vidui and charatah, confession and regret. The second part is changing how we behave and getting back on the right path. The first part, vidui and charatah, is not so hard. It is easy to look back and identify lackings in our past behavior and admit it. But resolving to change our behavior from now on, keeping to the right path, this is very difficult. The force of habit is very powerful. It makes improper ways, and even outright sins, into second nature. They become part of a person to the point that uprooting a negative trait or accustomed behavior feels like giving up a part of himself. This takes a lot of strength and siyata d'Shmaya.

For this reason we were given Aseres Yemei Teshuvah. These days have a very special quality. They have great siyata d'Shmaya which makes it easier to do Teshuvah. The following metaphor illustrates the point.

When you go to a building site you sometimes see giant beams, each of which weighs tons. There is no way in the world a person could pick up one of them with his bare hands and put it in place. That's why they bring in a giant crane to raise the beam. Once it is suspended in the air, a worker standing on the wall can turn the beam this way and that way with his bare hands and direct it to its proper place. Once the crane picked it up, it's easy to move it around.

This is how it is with Teshuvah. It is indeed very hard to do proper Teshuvah. It takes tremendous strength. It is like lifting a very heavy object from the ground.

This is how it is during the rest of the year. But during Aseres Yemei Teshuvah, after hearing the shofar on Rosh Hashanah, and with the special kedushah of these days, it is like Hakadosh Baruch Hu lifted up the whole world with a giant crane. We are up in the air. Now we have the ability to finish the job, to rectify our souls, to correct our behavior patterns, to do true, proper Teshuvah. This will cause our entire year to be blessed. ●

Show Your Merchandise

The big day is coming. Yom Kippur. It is called

The Radiance of Shofar

Shabbos Shabbason. It is the great and holy day on which the Jewish people are like angels. We wear white, we don't eat and drink, we have no envy and competition. We resemble heavenly beings.

The following allegory illustrates what is happening on these awesome days. A rich man had a lavish palace that was magnificently furnished. One day the palace burnt down along with everything in it. The rich man built a splendid new building, and now he wants to buy new furniture and appliances for it.

He examines everything he wants to buy very well to see if it is sturdy and well-built and tasteful, and whether it fits in nicely with the new house.

Although he would not have thrown a table out of his old house just because of some imperfection that he could either repair or live with, it is different now that he is buying everything new. He is not going to bring in a table that is wobbly or scratched up. If it is not in perfect condition, he will not even consider it.

This is how it is on Rosh Hashanah. This is the day when Hashem created the world, and He recreates it every year anew on this same day. And He wants to populate this new world that He is creating. Since the world is brand-new, He examines each and every person to see if he is in tip-top shape and is fitting to the new world.

Last year, even if he did some things wrong and marred himself, it is likely that Hashem had mercy on him and didn't throw him out. But only proper and fitting people are going to be put into the new world that is being created now.

During these days we may be compared to merchants coming to show their wares. Like every merchant who wants his wares to be bought up, we need to show samples of what we have to offer.

This is how it is during Aseres Yemei Teshuvah. We increase our Teshuvah, Tefilah and Tzedakah. We devote as much time as we can to Torah learning.

This is especially true on Yom Kippur, when we show ourselves as pure and holy like angels. These are the "samples" of our deeds that we show to Hakadosh Baruch Hu. We want to show that we have revamped ourselves and done real Teshuvah, and we are fitting to be part of the new world just now being created.

But there is a problem here. Let's say a merchant shows fine, attractive samples of merchandise, but he doesn't have in stock the same quality of merchandise that he showed.

In such a case, he has misled his customer. The buyer wants what will be supplied to him from the warehouse; he didn't purchase mere samples.

So it is with us. We can't just show Hashem on Yom Kippur that we are full of yiras Shamayim and good deeds, and in fine spiritual shape, if we don't intend to behave that way all year long. What will we answer Hashem if He says that we showed Him false and misleading samples?

On these awesome days, we are showing to Hashem, and mainly to ourselves, that we can indeed live a life of Torah and mitzvos. We need to take proper advantage of this opportunity so it will serve as a good beginning for the coming year, and extend its blessed influence throughout the rest of the year.

Yud Gimel Midos

Our recitation of Hashem's Thirteen Traits of Mercy is a most wondrous thing.

עַל פְּנֵי וַיִּקְרָא – “Hashem passed before him and exclaimed...” R. Yochanan said: If the Torah would not have written this, we could not have said such a thing.

It teaches that Hashem wrapped Himself in a tallis like a shaliach tzibbur and showed Moshe an order of prayer. Hashem said to him, “Whenever the Jewish people sin, they should perform this order of prayer before Me [i.e., the Yud Gimel Midos,] and I will pardon them.”<sup>1</sup>

Chazal thereby explain to us the tremendous, awesome power of this special prayer, of the Yud Gimel Midos Shel Rachamim.

We recite this prayer especially during Aseres

Yemei Teshuvah, and above all on Yom Kippur, which is the day most connected to these traits of Divine mercy.

The chazan stands before the amud and calls out: ...ה' ה' א-ל רחום וחנון... But who is the real shaliach tzibbur at that time? So to speak, it is Hashem Himself, declaring the Yud Gimel Midos, enwrapped in a white shawl of rachamim, as it says:

– וְעֵתִיק יוֹמִין יָתֵב לְבוּשָׁה כְּתֹלַג חָוֶר –
“The Ancient of Days is sitting, and His garment is white as snow.”<sup>2</sup>

It makes a big difference who is the chazan in shul.

Eliyahu Hanavi would come regularly to the yeshivah of R. Yehudah Hanasi. Once, on Rosh Chodesh, he was late and did not come. R. Yehudah Hanasi asked him, “Why were you late?”

He answered, “I awoke Avraham Avinu, washed his hands, and then he prayed, and then I put him back to bed. And after that, Yitzchak, and after that, Yaakov. Because if I would get them all up and they would pray together, Mashiach would come before the time.”

R. Yehudah Hanasi asked him, “Is there anyone like the Avos Hakedoshim in today’s world?” He answered, “R. Chiya and his sons.”

Once, when there was no rain, R. Yehudah Hanasi declared a public fast, and sent R. Chiya and his sons to serve as the chazanim. R. Chiya said Mashiv haruach, and the wind blew. He said Morid hageshem, and the rain fell. When they came to say Mechayeh hameisim, the entire world shook. Eliyahu Hanavi came in the form of a fiery lion and disturbed them, and they stopped praying.<sup>3</sup>

This story shows us the power of the shaliach tzibbur when he is wise and holy like R. Chiya and his sons. His prayer is accepted immediately, to the point that if they would have recited Mechayeh hameisim, the dead would have come back to life. Hakadosh Baruch Hu is called the Tzaddik of the world, and He is our shaliach tzibbur!

And when we recite the Thirteen Traits of Divine Mercy, it is as if Hakadosh Baruch Hu Himself is the shaliach tzibbur. Surely this opens the gates of rachamim above to bring atonement for the Jewish people.

However, it says in Sefer Tomer Devorah, authored by the saintly R. Moshe Cordovero, that the main point of reciting these traits of mercy is to bring us to practice them ourselves. It is for us to be merciful and compassionate, to refrain from anger, to bear offence and insult. It is not a mere recitation of Hakadosh Baruch Hu's compassionate traits and ways. As he writes there:

The Thirteen Traits, by which a person resembles his Maker, which are the traits of Divine mercy. Their special power is as follows: just as a person behaves down here on earth, so he will merit that the Heavenly trait will open for him above.

Just like he conducts himself, so will he receive the Heavenly influx from above, and thereby cause that trait to shine in the world.

May we all, the entire Beis Yisrael, merit a gemar chasimah tovah, amen! ●

Your Father in Heaven Purifies You

It's Uplifting to Cease Eating

The Jewish people had no Yamim Tovim like... Yom Kippur... because it entails forgiveness and pardon.<sup>1</sup>

Yom Kippur is a day like none other. It is a day of tefilah and teshuvah, a day on which the Jewish people's sins are forgiven and atoned.

The very fast of Yom Kippur is different from all others. This is because other fasts are days of self-affliction and teshuvah in remembrance of tragic events that happened at that time. Whereas Yom Kippur is "Shabbos shabbason,"<sup>2</sup> a day of total cessation. It is a day on which we simply cease from eating and drinking.

The point of this cessation is not to cause ourselves discomfort. Just as cessation from work on Shabbos is not a discomfort – rather, on this day we involve ourselves in matters loftier than working in the field, and our cessation brings us a much more exalted happiness – so it is on Yom Kippur. A person ceases from eating and drinking, and is uplifted to a much higher spiritual level.

Yom Kippur is a Totally Different System

When we compare Yom Kippur to the rest of the year we encounter a puzzling point. On the one hand, we daven and learn all year long. Surely this has an effect. On the other hand, we are told that everything depends on Yom Kippur. How are we to understand this?

The truth is that Aseres Yemei Teshuvah, culminating in Yom Kippur, is totally different from the rest of the year. To borrow a metaphor from ancient astronomy, this may be compared to celestial systems. There is one system in which the sun and moon and stars are considered together, such that they follow a certain orbit relative to the earth, as determined by a great celestial sphere. And there is another system in which the sun has its own sphere and the moon has its own sphere which determine their individual orbits. These two systems coexist.

Yom Kippur is like the first system. It is like the great sphere determining the orbit of everything. At the same time, each day has also its own individual "sphere," its own avodah and its own tefilah. Nonetheless, Yom Kippur makes it all go round. Everything depends on this day.

This idea is expressed in the Siddur HaRashash, in which are set forth all the kavanos of the Arizal for the tefilos. It says there that on Aseres Yemei Teshuvah and during Sefiras HaOmer, one should not have the regular kavanos of the rest of the year. Rather, there are special kavanos for these days. This is because on each ordinary day, the shefa that descends from Heaven is "like water that flows drop by drop," as it says in the Rashash's Siddur. Single drops of shefa descend from Above. But on these special days, "the windows of Heaven" open up and boundless shefa is bestowed upon us.

To appreciate the power of Yom Kippur, we should know that there are two forms of avodas Hashem. The first, which is the main avodah we engage in most of the time, is that a person builds himself up. He works on his yiras Shamayim, his ahavas Hashem, his limud haTorah and so forth. The second form of avodah is that a person serves Hashem and prays for the siyata d'Shmaya that Hashem, on His part, should bring about the change. Hashem should uplift him.

There are two ways to merit this siyata d'Shmaya. The first is to pray to Hashem and ask Him for His help. (I knew a certain yeshivah boy whose davening on Yom Kippur was being disrupted by inappropriate thoughts that kept going through his head. When he saw that it was too much already, he said to Hashem in the middle of his tefilah, “Ribono shel Olam, I can’t stand it anymore. I’m not able to control my thoughts – please, You protect me!” Right away he saw how everything cleared up.)

The second way is as follows: even if a person doesn’t have the knowledge and intelligence it takes to turn to Hashem and ask for His help, he should simply “take shelter” in Hashem.

It is written:

טוֹב לְחַסוֹת בַּה' מִבְּטַח בְּאָדָם – It is better to take shelter in Hashem than to trust in man.<sup>3</sup>

The Vilna Gaon in his commentary on this pasuk explains that “taking shelter” means a person simply comes and seeks shelter although he has received no promise that he will receive protection. (The pasuk is thus saying that the unpromised shelter of Hashem is better than the promised help of man.) It is like someone sheltering himself under a tree. Even if he has slighted the tree and not treated it properly, when he places himself under the shade of the tree, the tree still protects him. So it is with a person who takes shelter in the shade of Hashem. He will receive siyata d'Shamaya even if he doesn’t pray for it and ask for it.

The Day Itself Does It

This idea can explain the difference between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

On Rosh Hashanah we are called upon to work and toil. We recite Malchuyos, Zichronos and Shofaros. The Malchuyos declare Hashem as our King, the Zichronos raise our remembrance up to

Hashem for the good, and the Shofaros are the means that accomplish this.<sup>4</sup> We have a lot of work to do on Rosh Hashanah. But on Yom Kippur we do hardly anything ourselves. Everything comes from Hashem.

On Yom Kippur, the day itself effects the atonement, as the Rambam writes:

The very day of Yom Kippur atones.<sup>5</sup>

The holy day of Yom Kippur has this power because it is Hashem's day. Hashem alone atones for us and purifies us.

R. Yehudah HaNasi goes even farther and says that Yom Kippur atones also for someone who doesn’t do teshuvah.<sup>6</sup> Indeed, the Halachah is not this way. We must do teshuvah along with the atonement in order for it to work. Nevertheless, we are taught that teshuvah is really no more than a necessary condition for the kaparah of Yom Kippur to go into effect. The essential atonement does not come from us and our deeds. It does not stem from the greatness of each one of us, as expressed on this day. Rather, it is written:

יָמִים יֵצְרוּ וְלוֹ אֶחָד בָּהֶם – Though many days will be fashioned, just one of them is His.<sup>7</sup>

Chazal say that this one day is Yom Kippur.<sup>8</sup> Hashem alone purifies and cleanses us on Yom Kippur. It is “His” day. “Who purifies you? Your Father in Heaven!”<sup>9</sup> ●
